The nature of faith in Christ is the same. In order for our faith to grow and to have a large impact, we must learn our duty - to obey all that our master has commanded. It is our duty to rebuke our brother and sister when they sin. It is our duty to forgive them when they repent. It is our duty learn and then to obey all the commands that our master Jesus has given to us.

The Scriptures principally teach, what man is to believe concerning God, [5] and what duty God requires of man. [6] It's tempting to think that the catechism is dividing everything into “thinking” - what man is to believe concerning God - and “doing” - what duty God requires of man.

Faith is the only gift we have to offer the Lord. It's what the Samaritan leper brought Jesus in Luke 17, and it was enough. “And he told him, ‘Get up and go on your way. Your faith has saved you’” (v.19). But unlike faith, the grace of God isn't measured in mustard seeds.

Nick Curtis is one of the most highly decorated British soldiers ever to serve in Northern Ireland. In this compelling and unique book he graphically portrays his experiences in the Province during the turbulent years of 1969-1976. After surviving nearly 2,000 fired rounds, Curtis's duty as a uniformed officer ended and he was awarded the Military Medal for acts of bravery in the field. But he returned to the Province to become a key figure in undercover operations, liaising closely with such figures as Captain Robert Nairac, himself a legend for his undercover work among the IRA. Hard-hitting, uncompromising and extraordinarily frank, Nick Curtis' dramatic account of his life in Northern Ireland encompasses the extremities of urban civil war, the intrigues of undercover operations, and the political machinations that helped to form both.
