The news came as ministers released the long-delayed report by management consultants Hay McBer, which tries to define what makes an effective teacher. The 234-page report weighs in at 1.156 kg - that's 2lb 7oz for older effective teachers - but Hay admits it contains little that should surprise most teachers since its findings come from talking to the profession.

Revealed: the ideal teacher | Tes News

The 'teaching skills' group were broken down by Hay/McBer into 35 separate 'micro-behaviour' categories: essentially a scored check-list of characteristics exhibited by the teacher in a typical lesson. The report summarises these characteristics as including 'behaviours such as: Involving all pupils in the lesson.
