1.e4 is the most common opening move in chess. One of the key ideas of this move is to control the center quickly with the pawn which is placed in the center by the first move, also liberating White's light-squared bishop as well as the White Queen. White can follow up by playing Nf3 and moving his bishop to the dangerous c4 square.

So, when Klyatskin faced the move 1.e4, he probably thought "Oh no, not the Ruy Lopez again... boring!" Since Fischer random chess was not invented yet, the 1...Nf6 move was his attempt to get away from the mainstream theory. Of course, no one paid much attention to the games played by this club player even if he was a very talented chess composer.
