[This is a review of Once Upon a Time season 3, episode 11. There will be SPOILERS.]-The midseason finale of Once Upon A Time is here and plot twist whiplash abounds as the writers wrap-up the last of the loose ends from the Pan (Robbie Kay) storyline and move the show in its new direction for the second half of the season. And the theme that is repeated over and over by various characters is simple: sometimes the happiest ending is the one you never saw coming.

Rumple wasn't the only villain to get a happy ending (or, as she put it, a second chance.) Regina's story came full circle when she was elected by the people and crowned as their leader the Good Queen. Regina began as the villain we loved to hate, the thorn in our collective side who deserved a comeuppance that never seemed to arrive.
