However, the recycling process of paper cups is complicated, and recycling communities that accept paper cups are very rare. Majority of paper cups are made out of virgin materials - not recycled paper and lined with a thin coating of polyethylene plastic. This layer is hard to be separated even though there is as little as 5% of plastic material per cup. A thin layer of coating ensures that the cup will hold the liquid content without leaking.

How to recycle Paper Cups

Unlike most paper items, paper cups can't be recycled because they're actually coated in plasticas little as five percent per cup. That's why they're able to hold liquid without leaking all over the place. It's also why they don't get broken down into pulp and turned into recycled paper. While some communities do recycle materials like paper coffee cups, they're very rare.
