It is founded in principles of constructive conversation that focus on "remembering" lives, in contrast to processes of forgetting or dismembering those who have died. Re-membering is about a comforting, life enhancing, and sustaining approach to death that does not dwell on the pain of loss and is much more than wistful reminiscing.

One of the most well known areas in which re-remembering conversations are used is in situations of loss and grief, as Lorraine Hedtke describes: In my work with dying persons and families experiencing grief, re-remembering is an ever-present guide. I ask people who are dying directly about how they want their stories carried forward.
